

Henry Allen & Son

FURNISHING
UNDERTAKERS
88 Main Street.

LADY ASSISTANT WHEN REQUESTED.

It Colors
STRAW HATS

RED, SAGE GREEN, BLACK, NAVY BLUE,
CADET BLUE,
BURNT STRAW,
VIOLET.

Easy to use. You paint it on with the brush.

25 CENTS

N. D. Sevin & Son
AGENTS

Floor Paint

We have SENOURS' FLOOR PAINT in stock, a paint that will DRY OVER NIGHT and WEARS LIKE IRON. A superior article in every way.

SIVE IT A TRIAL.

FRED C. CROWELL'S, 87 Water St.
Open Saturday evenings till 8 p. m. april 24

Who Is Looking
For the Following Vehicles?

Democrats, Top and Open Business Wagons, and Open Concords.
If prices received is considered, get our prices.

THE L. L. CHAPMAN CO.,
mar 15 day 19 to 20 Bath Street.

We are cutting some very nice BEEF these days. Also PORK, VEAL and LAMB of the Best.

Eat our Meats and you will eat something good.

PEOPLE'S MARKET,
6 Franklin St.
may 6

MAXWELL
For Sale

The swiftest looking car and greatest bargain offered. Maxwell 4-cylinder, 45 H. P., equipped with every modern appliance. 116 wheel base, quick detachable rim.
Been used carefully, now just out of the shop.
N. B. We have several cars, little used—prices right.

NEW POPE-HARTFORD, MAX-WELL AND OVERLAND CARS for immediate delivery.

Call for demonstrations, etc.

M. B. RING & SONS
mar 22

Now Is Your Opportunity

to finish your house cleaning by installing new furniture.
We have all your needs at the lowest possible prices.

Come into our store and inspect the goods.

M. HOURIGAN,
62-66 Main Street.
apr 22

T-O-NIGHT
Chestnut

While you sleep
All Druggists

W-L-F

Cedar Posts
6 and 12 feet
For Fences, Arbors, Etc.

O. H. HASKELL,
58 Thames Street. Phone 402

The Bulletin.

Norwich, Tuesday, May 10, 1910.

The Bulletin should be delivered everywhere in the city before 8 a. m.
Subscribers who fail to receive it by that time will confer a favor by reporting the fact to The Bulletin Co.

THE WEATHER.

Forecast for Today.

Forecast for New England: Fair, cooler Tuesday; Wednesday fair; moderate westerly winds.

Predictions from the New York Herald: On Wednesday, fair and cooler weather.

Observations in Norwich.
The following records, reported from Sevin's pharmacy, show the changes in temperature and the barometric changes Monday:

	Ther. Bar.
7 a. m.	54.25
12 m.	57.25
6 p. m.	56.25
Highest 62.	58.25

Comparisons.
Predictions for Monday: Showers; winds mostly south.

On Tuesday: Overcast and threatening with rain in the early morning and a thunder shower in the evening. Winds variable, becoming southwest.

Sun, Moon and Tides.

Day	a. m.	p. m.	a. m.	p. m.
9	4.35	6.52	9.09	9.52
10	4.26	6.42	8.59	9.42
11	4.16	6.32	8.49	9.32
12	4.06	6.22	8.39	9.22
13	3.56	6.12	8.29	9.12
14	3.46	6.02	8.19	9.02
15	3.36	5.52	8.09	8.52

Six hours after high water it is low tide, which is followed by flood tide.

GREENEVILLE

Death of Former Resident in New York—Local Fishermen Capture Bulldheads—Personal.

Jeremiah Coughlan, a former resident of Greenville, but for thirty years or more an undertaker in New York city, died at his home there Sunday morning. On the boat train Sunday night his brother, John Coughlan, and daughters, Misses Nellie and Katherine, and his sister, Mrs. Julia Driscoll, of Central avenue, left to attend the funeral.

Charles Buchanan of Providence is passing a few days at his home on Thirtieth street.

B. J. McCrohan of Worcester is spending two weeks at his home on Sixth street.

Miss Jennie Rivers and Miss Nellie Foley of Willimantic are spending a few days with relatives here.

Mrs. John Elial of 233 Central avenue, where she will reside with her son.

George Kramer returned to his home at Central avenue, after spending the week end in Colchester.

Walter A. Ingalls, after living at 516 North Main street for over thirty years, has moved to 31 Twelfth street.

Miss Maud Gellino, who has been spending a week as the guest of relatives in town, has returned to Hartford.

Rudolph Lemelle of the naval training station at Newport, is visiting Greenville relatives on a ten days' furlough.

Miss Kitty Martin of Willimantic has returned home after spending several days with Mrs. William Malone of Central avenue.

Herman Soules, William H. Sweet and Burton Hall of Central avenue made a trip to Tadmar pond, Bozrah, on a recent night after bulleheads and catfish, and secured 17, 20 and 16 fine fish, respectively.

Fight on West Side.
About 6 o'clock Monday evening Patrick Fitzgerald, John Donahue and Frank Rogers had a wordy war on the West side and attracted much attention by their trouble. They became so noisy and troublesome that Policeman McFadden took all three to the police station.

Second Reception.
At the Second Congregational church parsonage on Monday afternoon and evening the second reception to members of the church was given by Rev. and Mrs. H. J. Wyckoff, a good sized number attending despite the bad weather.

FOR BABY'S
SAKE USE

E. S. SYKES
Comfort
Powder

Then his skin will be free from itching, chafing, scalding, rashes, and all sore-ness. The original and best baby powder. For twenty years Comfort Powder has been used by thousands of New England physicians, nurses, and mothers who use no other.

Look for the name E. S. SYKES on every box. None genuine without it.

Funeral
Director
and Embalmer

70 Franklin St., Bulletin Bldg.
Telephone 643-2.
Prompt service day or night.
Lady Assistant.

Residence 116 Broadway, opp. Theatre.
Telephone 643-2.

Why They Praise Him.
Everyone praises Bjornstjerne Bjornson, but few read him. It isn't necessary so long as you have a good improve of him—Philadelphia Inquirer.

True Happiness.
About the happiest man in the world about the best, having a bad, is able to make a living at it—Chicago Record-Herald.

George William Waite,
thirty-three degree, is making
the arrangements for the trip, having consulted with the officers of the consistory. There are many details connected with the trip to be decided upon, but the officers are at work upon them now.

REMEMBRANCE OF NORWICH
BACK IN THE YEAR 1837.
Hon. F. J. Kingsbury of Waterbury
Writes of His Visit Here Then.

The following letter written to the Hartford Courant by Hon. F. J. Kingsbury of Waterbury, suggested by the recent paper by Mr. Silberman of Hartford, will be read with interest here:
Arthur Shipman's paper on Norwich, which goes back considerably
more than halfway to the revolution,
and may be considered as fairly historical. It was on the fourth day
of July, 1837. My great-uncle, Col.
J. Kingsbury of Franklin, just returned from his tour of duty in the third I remained for several days. On the fourth day, Col. Kingsbury, although I think it known to have a charter, was made the principal address
of the day. He landed, or simply
"the Landing." We went down
through old Norwich town, which
was then a small town, and he
was looked upon as rather the court
and of the town. We visited the same old places, and he was the most of the day. It was not then completed, but was begun, and General Jackson
had laid the cornerstone four years
before and Judge Nathaniel Shipman,
who was the great-grandfather of Arthur, made the principal address. I remember something, too, of a local waterworks, probably not of any
great extent, but a convenient one to
many and a promise of better things,
and, unless my memory misleads me,
there was a small fountain near the
waterworks, and the water was fed
by this source of supply. I also remember the Yantic falls, which seem to have been near the same place, but
on this point my recollection is not clear.

On the way from the town down to the Landing we passed the seats of
John and Charles Rockwell. I had never seen either of them, but as these places then appeared. The
grounds were so extensive and finely
kept, and the buildings so grand,
some of it I rather imagine
in design, for if I remember aright, Adam and Eve were two of the conspicuous figures, but to my outraged eyes they were models of beauty
and elegance, and I have never gotten
over the impression. In the evening
we drove out to the wharves
where we went to the shop of a respectable
man and got a lunch of oysters and wine. We then drove out to the wharves
where we went to the shop of a respectable
man and got a lunch of oysters and
wine. We then drove out to the wharves
where we went to the shop of a respectable
man and got a lunch of oysters and
wine.

HARDLY HERE THIS YEAR

Connecticut Sovereign Consistory will go to Hartford and Work the Class 1 here—Special Train will Carry Local Party.

One of the prominent days in Masonry here every year for some time has been Hartford day, so called because of the class of candidates from Hartford and vicinity who came here to get their 32d degree in the Connecticut sovereign consistory. This has brought in the neighborhood of a hundred prominent Masons here every spring, but this year there will be no such day here. It will be held at Hartford instead, to which city the consistory will go to do the work.

For candidates in this part of the state who have completed their subordinate work and are ready for the 32d degree, there will be a session next Monday night and one the night of May 10, with a session on some convenient night between those dates, thus giving three chances for the conference of the degree on candidates from this part of the state before the visit to Hartford.

The special train which will carry the party will start from New London to accommodate the members from that end of the county and there will be present the officers of the consistory.
There are many details connected with the trip to be decided upon, but the officers are at work up-
on them now.

George William Waite,
thirty-three degree, is making
the arrangements for the trip, having
consulted with the officers of the
consistory. There are many details
connected with the trip to be decided
upon, but the officers are at work up-
on them now.

REMEMBRANCE OF NORWICH
BACK IN THE YEAR 1837.
Hon. F. J. Kingsbury of Waterbury
Writes of His Visit Here Then.

The following letter written to the
Hartford Courant by Hon. F. J. Kings-
bury of Waterbury, suggested by the
recent paper by Mr. Silberman of Hart-
ford, will be read with interest here:
Arthur Shipman's paper on Nor-
wich, which goes back considerably
more than halfway to the revolution,
and may be considered as fairly
historical. It was on the fourth day
of July, 1837. My great-uncle, Col.
J. Kingsbury of Franklin, just re-
turned from his tour of duty in the
third I remained for several days. On
the fourth day, Col. Kingsbury, although I think it known to have a
charter, was made the principal address
of the day. He landed, or simply
"the Landing." We went down
through old Norwich town, which
was then a small town, and he
was looked upon as rather the court
and of the town. We visited the
same old places, and he was the
most of the day. It was not then completed, but was begun, and General Jackson
had laid the cornerstone four years
before and Judge Nathaniel Shipman,
who was the great-grandfather of Arthur, made the principal address. I
remember something, too, of a local
waterworks, probably not of any
great extent, but a convenient one to
many and a promise of better things,
and, unless my memory misleads me,
there was a small fountain near the
waterworks, and the water was fed
by this source of supply. I also re-
member the Yantic falls, which seem
to have been near the same place, but
on this point my recollection is not
clear.

On the way from the town down to
the Landing we passed the seats of
John and Charles Rockwell. I had
never seen either of them, but as
these places then appeared. The
grounds were so extensive and finely
kept, and the buildings so grand,
some of it I rather imagine
in design, for if I remember aright,
Adam and Eve were two of the con-
spicuous figures, but to my out-
raged eyes they were models of beauty
and elegance, and I have never gotten
over the impression. In the evening
we drove out to the wharves
where we went to the shop of a respectable
man and got a lunch of oysters and
wine. We then drove out to the wharves
where we went to the shop of a respectable
man and got a lunch of oysters and
wine.

REMEMBRANCE OF NORWICH
BACK IN THE YEAR 1837.
Hon. F. J. Kingsbury of Waterbury
Writes of His Visit Here Then.

The following letter written to the
Hartford Courant by Hon. F. J. Kings-
bury of Waterbury, suggested by the
recent paper by Mr. Silberman of Hart-
ford, will be read with interest here:
Arthur Shipman's paper on Nor-
wich, which goes back considerably
more than halfway to the revolution,
and may be considered as fairly
historical. It was on the fourth day
of July, 1837. My great-uncle, Col.
J. Kingsbury of Franklin, just re-
turned from his tour of duty in the
third I remained for several days. On
the fourth day, Col. Kingsbury, although I think it known to have a
charter, was made the principal address
of the day. He landed, or simply
"the Landing." We went down
through old Norwich town, which
was then a small town, and he
was looked upon as rather the court
and of the town. We visited the
same old places, and he was the
most of the day. It was not then completed, but was begun, and General Jackson
had laid the cornerstone four years
before and Judge Nathaniel Shipman,
who was the great-grandfather of Arthur, made the principal address. I
remember something, too, of a local
waterworks, probably not of any
great extent, but a convenient one to
many and a promise of better things,
and, unless my memory misleads me,
there was a small fountain near the
waterworks, and the water was fed
by this source of supply. I also re-
member the Yantic falls, which seem
to have been near the same place, but
on this point my recollection is not
clear.

On the way from the town down to
the Landing we passed the seats of
John and Charles Rockwell. I had
never seen either of them, but as
these places then appeared. The
grounds were so extensive and finely
kept, and the buildings so grand,
some of it I rather imagine
in design, for if I remember aright,
Adam and Eve were two of the con-
spicuous figures, but to my out-
raged eyes they were models of beauty
and elegance, and I have never gotten
over the impression. In the evening
we drove out to the wharves
where we went to the shop of a respectable
man and got a lunch of oysters and
wine. We then drove out to the wharves
where we went to the shop of a respectable
man and got a lunch of oysters and
wine.

REMEMBRANCE OF NORWICH
BACK IN THE YEAR 1837.
Hon. F. J. Kingsbury of Waterbury
Writes of His Visit Here Then.

The following letter written to the
Hartford Courant by Hon. F. J. Kings-
bury of Waterbury, suggested by the
recent paper by Mr. Silberman of Hart-
ford, will be read with interest here:
Arthur Shipman's paper on Nor-
wich, which goes back considerably
more than halfway to the revolution,
and may be considered as fairly
historical. It was on the fourth day
of July, 1837. My great-uncle, Col.
J. Kingsbury of Franklin, just re-
turned from his tour of duty in the
third I remained for several days. On
the fourth day, Col. Kingsbury, although I think it known to have a
charter, was made the principal address
of the day. He landed, or simply
"the Landing." We went down
through old Norwich town, which
was then a small town, and he
was looked upon as rather the court
and of the town. We visited the
same old places, and he was the
most of the day. It was not then completed, but was begun, and General Jackson
had laid the cornerstone four years
before and Judge Nathaniel Shipman,
who was the great-grandfather of Arthur, made the principal address. I
remember something, too, of a local
waterworks, probably not of any
great extent, but a convenient one to
many and a promise of better things,
and, unless my memory misleads me,
there was a small fountain near the
waterworks, and the water was fed
by this source of supply. I also re-
member the Yantic falls, which seem
to have been near the same place, but
on this point my recollection is not
clear.

On the way from the town down to
the Landing we passed the seats of
John and Charles Rockwell. I had
never seen either of them, but as
these places then appeared. The
grounds were so extensive and finely
kept, and the buildings so grand,
some of it I rather imagine
in design, for if I remember aright,
Adam and Eve were two of the con-
spicuous figures, but to my out-
raged eyes they were models of beauty
and elegance, and I have never gotten
over the impression. In the evening
we drove out to the wharves
where we went to the shop of a respectable
man and got a lunch of oysters and
wine. We then drove out to the wharves
where we went to the shop of a respectable
man and got a lunch of oysters and
wine.

REMEMBRANCE OF NORWICH
BACK IN THE YEAR 1837.
Hon. F. J. Kingsbury of Waterbury
Writes of His Visit Here Then.

The following letter written to the
Hartford Courant by Hon. F. J. Kings-
bury of Waterbury, suggested by the
recent paper by Mr. Silberman of Hart-
ford, will be read with interest here:
Arthur Shipman's paper on Nor-
wich, which goes back considerably
more than halfway to the revolution,
and may be considered as fairly
historical. It was on the fourth day
of July, 1837. My great-uncle, Col.
J. Kingsbury of Franklin, just re-
turned from his tour of duty in the
third I remained for several days. On
the fourth day, Col. Kingsbury, although I think it known to have a
charter, was made the principal address
of the day. He landed, or simply
"the Landing." We went down
through old Norwich town, which
was then a small town, and he
was looked upon as rather the court
and of the town. We visited the
same old places, and he was the
most of the day. It was not then completed, but was begun, and General Jackson
had laid the cornerstone four years
before and Judge Nathaniel Shipman,
who was the great-grandfather of Arthur, made the principal address. I
remember something, too, of a local
waterworks, probably not of any
great extent, but a convenient one to
many and a promise of better things,
and, unless my memory misleads me,
there was a small fountain near the
waterworks, and the water was fed
by this source of supply. I also re-
member the Yantic falls, which seem
to have been near the same place, but
on this point my recollection is not
clear.

On the way from the town down to
the Landing we passed the seats of
John and Charles Rockwell. I had
never seen either of them, but as
these places then appeared. The
grounds were so extensive and finely
kept, and the buildings so grand,
some of it I rather imagine
in design, for if I remember aright,
Adam and Eve were two of the con-
spicuous figures, but to my out-
raged eyes they were models of beauty
and elegance, and I have never gotten
over the impression. In the evening
we drove out to the wharves
where we went to the shop of a respectable
man and got a lunch of oysters and
wine. We then drove out to the wharves
where we went to the shop of a respectable
man and got a lunch of oysters and
wine.

REMEMBRANCE OF NORWICH
BACK IN THE YEAR 1837.
Hon. F. J. Kingsbury of Waterbury
Writes of His Visit Here Then.

The following letter written to the
Hartford Courant by Hon. F. J. Kings-
bury of Waterbury, suggested by the
recent paper by Mr. Silberman of Hart-
ford, will be read with interest here:
Arthur Shipman's paper on Nor-
wich, which goes back considerably
more than halfway to the revolution,
and may be considered as fairly
historical. It was on the fourth day
of July, 1837. My great-uncle, Col.
J. Kingsbury of Franklin, just re-
turned from his tour of duty in the
third I remained for several days. On
the fourth day, Col. Kingsbury, although I think it known to have a
charter, was made the principal address
of the day. He landed, or simply
"the Landing." We went down
through old Norwich town, which
was then a small town, and he
was looked upon as rather the court
and of the town. We visited the
same old places, and he was the
most of the day. It was not then completed, but was begun, and General Jackson
had laid the cornerstone four years
before and Judge Nathaniel Shipman,
who was the great-grandfather of Arthur, made the principal address. I
remember something, too, of a local
waterworks, probably not of any
great extent, but a convenient one to
many and a promise of better things,
and, unless my memory misleads me,
there was a small fountain near the
waterworks, and the water was fed
by this source of supply. I also re-
member the Yantic falls, which seem
to have been near the same place, but
on this point my recollection is not
clear.

On the way from the town down to
the Landing we passed the seats of
John and Charles Rockwell. I had
never seen either of them, but as
these places then appeared. The
grounds were so extensive and finely
kept, and the buildings so grand,
some of it I rather imagine
in design, for if I remember aright,
Adam and Eve were two of the con-
spicuous figures, but to my out-
raged eyes they were models of beauty
and elegance, and I have never gotten
over the impression. In the evening
we drove out to the wharves
where we went to the shop of a respectable
man and got a lunch of oysters and
wine. We then drove out to the wharves
where we went to the shop of a respectable
man and got a lunch of oysters and
wine.

REMEMBRANCE OF NORWICH
BACK IN THE YEAR 1837.
Hon. F. J. Kingsbury of Waterbury
Writes of His Visit Here Then.

The following letter written to the
Hartford Courant by Hon. F. J. Kings-
bury of Waterbury, suggested by the
recent paper by Mr. Silberman of Hart-
ford, will be read with interest here:
Arthur Shipman's paper on Nor-
wich, which goes back considerably
more than halfway to the revolution,
and may be considered as fairly
historical. It was on the fourth day
of July, 1837. My great-uncle, Col.
J. Kingsbury of Franklin, just re-
turned from his tour of duty in the
third I remained for several days. On
the fourth day, Col. Kingsbury, although I think it known to have a
charter, was made the principal address
of the day. He landed, or simply
"the Landing." We went down
through old Norwich town, which
was then a small town, and he
was looked upon as rather the court
and of the town. We visited the
same old places, and he was the
most of the day. It was not then completed, but was begun, and General Jackson
had laid the cornerstone four years
before and Judge Nathaniel Shipman,
who was the great-grandfather of Arthur, made the principal address. I
remember something, too, of a local
waterworks, probably not of any
great extent, but a convenient one to
many and a promise of better things,
and, unless my memory misleads me,
there was a small fountain near the
waterworks, and the water was fed
by this source of supply. I also re-
member the Yantic falls, which seem
to have been near the same place, but
on this point my recollection is not
clear.

On the way from the town down to
the Landing we passed the seats of
John and Charles Rockwell. I had
never seen either of them, but as
these places then appeared. The
grounds were so extensive and finely
kept, and the buildings so grand,
some of it I rather imagine
in design, for if I remember aright,
Adam and Eve were two of the con-
spicuous figures, but to my out-
raged eyes they were models of beauty
and elegance, and I have never gotten
over the impression. In the evening
we drove out to the wharves
where we went to the shop of a respectable
man and got a lunch of oysters and
wine. We then drove out to the wharves
where we went to the shop of a respectable
man and got a lunch of oysters and
wine.

REMEMBRANCE OF NORWICH
BACK IN THE YEAR 1837.
Hon. F. J. Kingsbury of Waterbury
Writes of His Visit Here Then.

The following letter written to the
Hartford Courant by Hon. F. J. Kings-
bury of Waterbury, suggested by the
recent paper by Mr. Silberman of Hart-
ford, will be read with interest here:
Arthur Shipman's paper on Nor-
wich, which goes back considerably
more than halfway to the revolution,
and may be considered as fairly
historical. It was on the fourth day
of July, 1837. My great-uncle, Col.
J. Kingsbury of Franklin, just re-
turned from his tour of duty in the
third I remained for several days. On
the fourth day, Col. Kingsbury, although I think it known to have a
charter, was made the principal address
of the day. He landed, or simply
"the Landing." We went down
through old Norwich town, which
was then a small town, and he
was looked upon as rather the court
and of the town. We visited the
same old places, and he was the
most of the day. It was not then completed, but was begun, and General Jackson
had laid the cornerstone four years
before and Judge Nathaniel Shipman,
who was the great-grandfather of Arthur, made the principal address. I
remember something, too, of a local
waterworks, probably not of any
great extent, but a convenient one to
many and a promise of better things,
and, unless my memory misleads me,
there was a small fountain near the
waterworks, and the water was fed
by this source of supply. I also re-
member the Yantic falls, which seem
to have been near the same place, but
on this point my recollection is not
clear.

On the way from the town down to
the Landing we passed the seats of
John and Charles Rockwell. I had
never seen either of them, but as
these places then appeared. The
grounds were so extensive and finely
kept, and the buildings so grand,
some of it I rather imagine
in design, for if I remember aright,
Adam and Eve were two of the con-
spicuous figures, but to my out-
raged eyes they were models of beauty
and elegance, and I have never gotten
over the impression. In the evening
we drove out to the wharves
where we went to the shop of a respectable
man and got a lunch of oysters and
wine. We then drove out to the wharves
where we went to the shop of a respectable
man and got a lunch of oysters and
wine.

REMEMBRANCE OF NORWICH
BACK IN THE YEAR 1837.
Hon. F. J. Kingsbury of Waterbury
Writes of His Visit Here Then.

The following letter written to the
Hartford Courant by Hon. F. J. Kings-
bury of Waterbury, suggested by the
recent paper by Mr. Silberman of Hart-
ford, will be read with interest here:
Arthur Shipman's paper on Nor-
wich, which goes back considerably
more than halfway to the revolution,
and may be considered as fairly
historical. It was on the fourth day
of July, 1837. My great-uncle, Col.
J. Kingsbury of Franklin, just re-
turned from his tour of duty in the
third I remained for several days. On
the fourth day, Col. Kingsbury, although I think it known to have a
charter, was made the principal address
of the day. He landed, or simply
"the Landing." We went down
through old Norwich town, which
was then a small town, and he
was looked upon as rather the court
and of the town. We visited the
same old places, and he was the
most of the day. It was not then completed, but was begun, and General Jackson
had laid the cornerstone four years
before and Judge Nathaniel Shipman,
who was the great-grandfather of Arthur, made the principal address. I
remember something, too, of a local
waterworks, probably not of any
great extent, but a convenient one to
many and a promise of better things,
and, unless my memory misleads me,
there was a small fountain near the
waterworks, and the water was fed